“ A week ago our family lost an amazing husband, father, and grandfather. I cannot say that it was unexpected he was diagnosed with stage 4 cancer two years ago and was told by physicians he had six months left to live. There is nothing in life that can prepare us for the final moment. He is the most tenacious, sedulous, loving and forgiving person I've ever known. Him and I didn't always see eye to eye but he always had room in his heart for me. To be honest, I've been too much to to handle at times. His dry & goofy sense of humor will be missed, as well as his love of bleach. LOL!!! I wake up every day in anticipation of sharing one more morning coffee on the patio but instead stair at an empty chair where he once sat. My dad is finally at peace, it eases my heartache a little but also left a cavity which can't be filled. The reality of what I have lost finally struck me. It's hard to believe that I'll never see pops again. He gave unconditional love to everyone in his family. His face relentlessly flashes before my mind, his smirk, his jokes, and his profound optimism. I/we love you pops and will forever be missed in our hearts. I am positive we will see once again. I love you.
