

Barbara J Pharr

January 12, 2024

No obituary found for this tribute.

Tribute Wall

“ 1 file added to the tribute wall

Bree Tanner - January 09, 2025 at 05:33 PM

BT

“ i am the granddaughter of barbara and she was the best woman and grandmother I could have asked for. I still can't believe she has passed and it almost being a year. I still feel like she's just on another crazy adventure somewhere. I miss her every day and will continue to, she's on my mind every day still. It's been just abt a year and I still can't get over it. I found out she passed in late February and you're probably wondering why ? Her funeral was the 12th of January. I still wonder the same question, I still wonder why I was never informed to say goodbye or anything. I found out a month and a half later, through a text. I had been calling and texting my Mimi while a “family member” had her phone and chose to ignore it and not say anything. I had no idea abt anything then later on found that they had pulled the plug. That one of the “family members” who had been there on that day for that decision who has not been apart of the family in a long time was beside her in this moment. Who has not seen her in years, who has not kept up w her, until she was in her hospital bed. Probably one of the sickest things to have happened. May she rest in peace and live in the heavens with my grandfather Willie. I love you always Mimi.

Bree Tanner - January 09, 2025 at 05:01 PM