“ There's just no way that I could ever describe adequately the sunshine that Chris brought to my life in our early adult years. The friendship, the smiles, the laughter...all of it. Chris was someone who made you feel like somebody. The love he gave so freely and his sense of humor were something that you do not forget. How I've missed him all these years. God's Love and Comfort to Erin and Alex and his other family and friends. RIP Chris. I will always cherish our time together. 💔💔💔

“ Chris stopped by the church office nearly every day, tending to the garden or sharing what he was growing or just to say hello. Always willing to help out... I remember the way that he smiled when he stopped by the hospital to drop off granola bars when we were having our first child. I always knew that Chris would be supportive of whatever the church was doing, even if we weren't exactly certain! He would be there if he could be. I counted on Chris. It's been years since I spoke with him, and while life brings many hurdles that aren't always understood, I give many thanks for the ways God was at work in and through him, and I pray every good wish and blessing upon Alex and Erin. May the light of Christ's love still shine.

*With love,
