

Jason Duby

September 26, 2025

Jason Gerald Thomas “Jayjay” Duby, 28, passed away on September 26, 2025, in Foley, Alabama. Born on August 18, 1997, in Wichita, Kansas, Jason brought a quiet strength and gentle spirit to those around him.

He was the beloved partner of Collen Hacker and the cherished son of Thomas and Esther Duby. Jason shared close bonds with his siblings: Ashaley and her husband Matt Konkel; LaShelle Duby and her husband Devin Meuschke; and Thomas Lyman Duby III and his wife Kristen Duby. He was also dearly loved by his aunt and uncle, Samantha and Danny Ensign. Jason found great joy in being an uncle to twelve nieces and nephews.

He was preceded in death by his grandparents Shirley and Gerald Bruner, as well as his grandfather Thomas Lyman Duby Sr.

Jason’s passions reflected his unique personality—he had a deep love for gaming and Pokémon, often immersing himself in fantastical worlds that sparked his imagination. A talented artist, he expressed himself through drawing, capturing images inspired by the things he loved most. Whether enjoying a Coca-Cola or a bowl of ramen, spending time with Collen and his family, doting on cats, or avoiding bugs with humorous determination, Jason embraced life’s simple pleasures with sincerity.

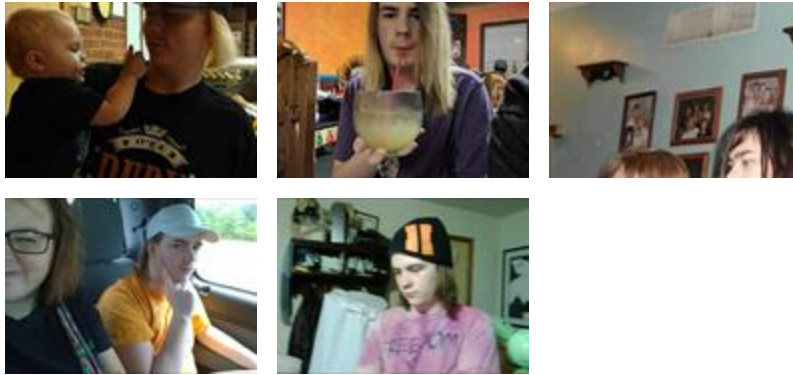

Those who knew him will remember Jason for his kind heart, quiet demeanor, and unwavering devotion to those he loved. His memory continues to bring warmth and comfort to all who were fortunate enough to share in his journey.

May his memory bring comfort to those who knew him.

“ I met Jason and Collen online when I first started playing games. They were always so patient and willing to explain how different game features worked. They became my first real online friends, and I spent countless hours playing and learning with them, from Destiny 2 to Fortnite to For the King II. I was always surprised by how patient Jason was with me when I took way too long to figure out whatever the heck jump puzzles were. Jason also introduced me to Roblox, which I had never heard of before. We shared so many virtual adventures together and even spent some holidays online. He was always up to date on the latest games and their features, and I always loved hearing his perspective on new releases. I already miss him.

“ You were the best of all of us, and the all time favorite of everyone, there is not a day left where you won't be remembered, from your sweet little cry as a baby. making a fort out of toothpicks right outside my bedroom door where I ended up with one lodged in my foot. to you watching me the first day back from my first hospital i.e telling me all about the video game you were playing for 3 hours, and when I would doze off you would yell omg no you can't sleep yet im playing a game. Always being down to go for a drive even if you had stayed up all night. Still crawling in bed to be held if you were upset or didnt feel well. You were always to sweetest and kindest to everyone. As much as you said you hated kids I know it was a lie because you would have such patients when explaining things to your nieces and nephews especially if it was video game related. I don't know how many times you walking me through fixing an electronic and never once got upset when I didnt understand or had to call about the same issue again. Your barely there smile when you didnt want anyone to know you were happy. When you held my oldest the first time and you stopped playing your game and looked so awkward and said "I really don't know what to do with this thing". But then you got comfortable and started playing your game, then got offended when I took him back because you said he was comfortable and you were teaching him how to play. Or when I didnt want my kids having electronics or video games you went to bat for them and actually argued me on their behalf I had never seen you so upset but you took to their side and never let up. How you would have conversations with phin and tay and you never told their secrets like freaking ever but you would listen and give advice, just be there for their preteen rants. That ment the world to them, they bragged so much about you all the time to anyone that would listen because they hit the jackpot having you for an uncle. I could write an entire book on just my experiences with you and it still would never be enough to show the world how amazing you truly were. But know that every moment with you I will forever be grateful for. I will never heal my heart from this but you made every single one of us that much better and you love, the way you cared, your wisdom, and your strength will live on in all of our memories. I love you my little Jay Jay the jet plane!
