“ I met "mom" when I worked with Monica years ago. We went on many excursions after with her. Monika told me never make her mad. I thought she was just talking until one day at work I saw her "tear into" someone. I fell in love with her-she reminded me so much of my grandmother. We both loved dolls and when she visited me we had talks about them. I am going to really miss her and my one regret is that I didn't meet her years before. I love you "mom". Nancy B,

“ I met "mom" thru Monika while working at Walmart. I liked her a lot. Monika said she had spark and not get her mad. I thought she was just talking but I saw "mom" tear into someone at the store. I fell in love with her and we became good friends also. She reminded me of my Grandmother who was a "pistol ball". We both collected dolls and had that too. She was a fun, high spirited little lady and my regret is that I didn't meet her so much earlier in my life. I'll never forget you "mom". Love Nancy.

“ She was a terrific Aunt and wonderful person. she was the type to love you with everything you had and tell you like it was all in one beat. she was a spitfire, with a heart of gold and a soul to match. I posted this to fb and thought I would share it here.

My world is a little less bright. My family lost an amazing, feisty, outspoken and outgoing, with a didnt give a damn attitude, and totally independent woman yesterday. She was the last of my granny's family, my last aunt, one of my favorite people, and since I didnt know my granny, she became my adoptive granny growing up. She and mom were close. We always visited her when we had to go on 'work' vacation when dad worked, she sent me pigs, seals, pandas, and anything beatles related she could find. She helped me smuggle a rabbit home and took the blame for it when I was the one who bought it lol, she was there when mom busted my butt as a kid for hiding in the clothes rack at walmart. She tried to save me, but failed lol. Me, Marlene and Mégane went to see her on my 21st birthday. We spent the weekend in mobile, got my tongue pierced and she just laughed, and tried to help me get away with that too, she took us to popeyes, cicis, and to the flea market with said rabbit. She was always on the go even when she probably shouldn't have been. Taylor and I went to visit her 2 years ago and she knew we were coming... so she got up and left and went somewhere. LOL. I was just asking Lori about her the night before. That woman was crazy and hell bent and I loved her. I think its ironic that she and mom both passed on a Tuesday. I'm glad that the whole clan is back together and happy. That's what mom always wanted. I miss them both, but it's taken me awhile to realize that they arent suffering and are in a much better place than we are. I take comfort in that. She gave me a lamp 35 years ago and I still have it in my room. I love you Aunt Patsy. I will miss you. ❤️💕
