“ Today my Grandpa Luster was laid to rest, and while it is hard not to be sad right now, it's also a wonderful fact to know he is so much happier and no longer in any pain. He was a man of many opinions, but one thing for sure was his love for his family. Anytime he saw his family he would greet them with a huge smile and a great hello. He never missed a chance to give you a card, whether it be for your birthday, Christmas, Valentine's day; chance he could get. He didn't just randomly picked them out either, he spent a great deal of time finding the perfect one. And his laughter was a burst that could fill the room. He was a wonderful grandfather, father, and husband.

I love you, Grandpa.
